Henredon's FOLIO VI is a collection of bedroom, dining room, and occasional furniture portrayed in the classical revival style of the late 18th Century. Fine flutings, exotic veneers, panels framed with mouldings, and handsome brasses have been skillfully executed and employed to make this furniture magnificent to look at and a pleasure to own. The pieces are simply designed, yet they are rich because of the beautiful woods, fine finishes, and superior craftsmanship.

FOLIO VI is crafted from African mahogany solids with exquisite walnut veneers and the occasional use of boxwood inlay and rosewood veneers for accent. Three different painted finishes give variety to the glowing golden brown of the natural wood finish, Connoisseur. Several items are available with alternate tops of polished black granite to add contrast and enhance the look of authenticity.

With no loss of the symmetry and classical beauty associated with the 18th Century furniture, this group fulfills impeccably the demands of 20th Century living. Although some forms have been modified to fit contemporary decoration and current living needs, the spirit of the classical revival has been retained.

FOLIO VI contains an unusually broad selection of designs that will compliment a fashionable city apartment or a traditional country home. Whether the rooms be large or small, you will find a choice of sizes that will combine to create an effect that is elegant, distinctive, and harmonious. The functional designs can be arranged separately or grouped to meet a variety of individual tastes and requirements.

The base section has the top drawer fitted for silver protection. Each end compartment has an adjustable shelf. Overall size: 69 in. wide, 20 in. deep, 80 1/4 in. high. China deck No. 26-4500 or Buffet No. 21-4500. Arm chair No. 27-4500. Dining table No. 20-4501.

A Preface to Henredon's FOLIO VI

True pride of ownership of Henredon's FOLIO VI can be more fully realized with some knowledge and understanding of the details of design, construction, kinds of wood and finishes. Instinctively, we can appreciate the aesthetics of the group; the clean lines, the pleasing proportions, the color. It is the purpose of this guide to supplement the aesthetic appreciation of the furniture with a few brief facts and information.

Hardware

Fine hardware is a most important feature of fine furniture. These examples of Folio VI hardware are faithfully reproduced from authentic original models of the period. Unusual in form with fine clean detail, they were selected not only for their intrinsic beauty but also for their compatibility with the overall design of the furniture. The elliptical lines of the swags compliment the oft-repeated elliptical lines used in the design of tables and case pieces.

Folio VI hardware is an integral part of the overall design. Sensitively proportioned and scaled to the furniture on which it appears, they blend and ornament but do not dominate. Cast of solid brass, they are carefully oxidized, rubbed and antiqued to achieve the mellow patina of the originals.

Detail from No. 12-4502 Bedhead.

Carving

Really beautiful wood carving becomes more rare each year. Authentic design interpretation is of utmost importance. Of equal importance is the artistry of carving the original model and the meticulous workmanship required to achieve the crisp fine detail cut from the solid background that distinguishes these examples. On casual observation it is often difficult to distinguish actual wood carving from the several varieties of simulated wood carving found on much of today's furniture. On more careful inspection, however, distinction becomes readily apparent. There is no comparison with natural carved wood in feel, finish, sound and continuity of wood grain. All carving on Henredon's Folio VI is cut from solid African mahogany.

Craftsmanship

Henredon's traditionally superior craftsmanship is evident in these close-ups of Folio VI pieces. Only highly skilled craftsmen can perform the refinement of construction involved in these designs.

21-4500 Buffet detail.

This piece challenges nearly every cabinet making skill; matching of veneers, fitting several curved surfaces together, fitting curved mouldings to straight, and the close tolerance matching of veneered parts to solid.

25-4501 Mobile Server detail.

Perfect mitre joints, especially when complex mouldings are involved require great machine precision and a lot of careful hand sanding. The front facade of this server has 10 separate frames (or 40 moulding pieces) all matched together.

42-4500 Lamp Table detail.

Curved veneered surfaces require many operations. The work is much more difficult when one curved veneered surface is overlaid on another as happens on the apron and drawer front of this table. Note the pierced solid brass gallery and the fine line of boxwood inlay that tops the legs.

3-4500 Dresser Post detail.

A subtle combination of boxwood inlay, handkerchief matched veneer, and a moulded and paneled leg add up to a decorative post that quietly compliments the case.

20-4502 Dining Table detail.

This cluster column is very difficult to execute and it appears quite delicate in spite of the sturdy proportions. The cluster provides an ideal camouflage for the necessary break or split when the table is opened for extension.

20-4501 Dining Table detail.

Many classical design elements as boxing, moulding, fluting and carving have been skillfully combined to make a very complex leg of beautiful proportions.

Veneer Matching

Pattern matched veneers require both skill and artistry on the part of the craftsman. Since each flitch (or bundle) of veneer is different, each matched top or front takes an individual artistic judgment to develop the most interesting part of the grain into a pattern. It then takes skill and experience to cut and join each piece into a panel of precise size and shape. The result is truly a work of art as individual as a hand painted picture.

20-4501 Dining Table Top detail.

Note how the extension leaf continues the figured walnut veneer parquetry pattern.

42-4504 Lamp Table Top detail.

This is figured walnut veneer in book and butt matched pattern.

21-4502 Buffet Door detail.

Rosewood veneer is used here in a book and butt matched pattern, framed by cross-banding of quartered rosewood.

20-4503 Dining Table Top detail.

Here figured walnut veneer is used to create an 8-way radial match.
